Illustrated pattern: 98 | Finch-Pickering afternoon express | Documented 2013-06-29

A dated documentary atlas. Every pattern has its own numbered map and complete documented stop list. Reconstructed major-stop lists and full scheduled GTFS stop lists are identified separately.

Route history

A snapshot proves what was published at that date. It does not by itself establish when a route began or ended. Reused route numbers and changing branch suffixes remain separate dated records.

- 2013-06-29

  The new route 98 appears in the June 29 timetable; its weekday-only service first operated Tuesday July 2 after the holiday weekend. [S1] [S2]

- 2014-08-29

  Last operating day of route 98; replacement route 92A began Tuesday September 2. [S3]

Reading the maps

- Original GO feed: all scheduled stops are retained in their source order, including no-pickup and no-drop-off restrictions. The exact service dates are printed with the pattern.
- Historical reconstruction: the list generally contains published timing points or major stops. It is complete for that documented reconstruction, and may omit intermediate roadside stops.
- Solid lines use supplied feed shapes or an explicitly labelled corridor reconstruction. Dashed lines connect stop areas schematically. Number ranges mark close or co-located stops.
- Reference coordinates do not prove an old platform location. Stops without established coordinates remain in the ordered list; a stop-order diagram is used when a geographic map cannot be drawn.
- Route 98 is absent from later GTFS snapshots because it ended in 2014; its original timetable is essential evidence.
- These are documented dated snapshots. Changes between snapshots, temporary diversions and every historical local stop have not all been recovered.
- Manually reconstructed versions generally contain published timetable timing points / major stops. They must not be read as complete roadside stop inventories.
